

lean National Committee in 1900. In his testimony before the commission John A. McCall, then President of the New York Life Insurance Company, identified that check for $28,000 as a campaign contribution, as appears at page 2884 of Volume V. of the report, and it was received in evidence as such.

Under the circumstances will you please explain upon what theory you claim that Democrats who supported Bryan and Stansfield in 1900 should vote for Edward E. McCall in 1913?

Perhaps the Judge was simply "handing back" that $28,000 you did Brady's $25,000. But, anyhow, as an enrolled Democrat, I want an explanation of "Exhibit 503." Yours very truly,

ALEXANDER C. MACNULTY.

Murphy at Tammany Hall gave out a statement in which he asserted that he expects a landslide in favor of McCall on account of "the abuse that has been piled upon him." He still stuck to the estimate that Tammany will win by 150,000. And he doesn't smile when he says it.

Lacking bets on the general result, speculators turned to side issues and some wagers were made in special lines. At Schumaker's, there was a bet of $10,000 even that Mitchell would have three plurality, and another bet of $10,000 even that Mitchell would carry New York County.

Mr. Mitchell addressed two meetings yesterday and issued a statement in which he appealed to the voters to support the entire Fusion ticket. Mr. Mitchell at the same time made another attack on Mr. McCall, charging that his votes in the Board of Estimates were influenced by William H. Reynolds, former State Senator, of Brooklyn, to the latter's profit.

TAMMANY THREATENS TO INDICT SULZER.

Tammany is now threatening to have William Sulzer indicted in Albany County on a charge of subornation of perjury, growing out of his alleged effort to prevent Duncan W. Peck from telling the Fawcett Committee about his $500 contribution to Sulzer's campaign.

They also talk of investigating with a view to indicting the alleged attempt to persuade former Senator Sullivan to make incriminating affidavit in King County in return for Sulzer's pardon. This latter move on the part of Tammany is considered to be against John A. Hennessy as well as against Sulzer.

The Fusion managers have heard so many reports of Tammany "repeaters" and gunmen, and of other schemes to steal the election, they have called for volunteer watchers for the polls tomorrow. They expect to get at least 2,500 more.

William Sulzer charged that McCall and Murphy plotted to give him "the double cross." McCall playing the role of Judas. They planned to get him to endorse McCall by promising to stop his impeachment, and then to turn him over as a friend of Sulzer, set the trap and made the offer, the former Governor alleged. He produces documentary evidence of his story. The idea was to tie the Governor's hands so he couldn't fight Murphy's city ticket, then "fire him" despite their promises. So well did McCall play the role of "friend" that he got the endorsement of the "People's House," said Sulzer, that the "People's House" called Murphy a "brute" and spoke of Justice Dowling as "yellow" and "cowardly."

Nominees, managers and politicians in general will be glad when the campaign ends to-day. Veterans of many city "wars" say it has been the most violent on record, and that the fighting never approached its mad-swinging.

Republicans and other allies of the Fusion movement expect to elect the whole ticket. Tammany is still claiming it will win, but is plainly uneasy. Leader Murphy is worried and has storm signals out all along the line. His 150,000 majority prediction of last week dwindles to-day to a perfunctory "we'll win."

The Fusion estimates run from 100,000 to 150,000 majority on the city ticket. Samuel S. Koenig, president of the Republican County Committee, says Fusion will carry Manhattan by from 8,000 to 10,000. He says there will be a big Democratic slump in lower sections and that in the big Republican strongholds on the upper west side the Fusion movement will "run wild."

Many Democrats admit defeat means the eventual end of Murphy's reign, and possibly that it will result in a new Democracy to supplant Tammany. To add to the Tiger's discomfiture, there was a running fire of attack yesterday from the clergy in all parts of the city.

MITCHELL PLEADS FOR M'ANENY AND PRENDERGAST.

John Purroy Mitchell, Fusion candidate for Mayor, issued a statement to-day calling on all citizens who intend voting for him to vote also for his associates—Prendergast, Mayor-elect and Mr. Aneny for President of the Aldermen.

While he did not specifically mention the Independence League ticket, his appeal was an indirect knock at the Hearst party, which put Prendergast and McAneny off its ticket and substituted other candidates for these two offices.

Fusion leaders believe that enough persons might vote for the Hearst ticket candidates to let the Tammany nominees for these two offices to slip in over the regular Fusion candidates.

"I hope every man who votes for me will vote for Mr. Prendergast and Mr. McAneny," said Mr. Mitchell in his statement. "The election of a Tammany Mayor, Controller or a Tammany President of the Aldermen would be a calamity."

John Purroy Mitchell and Robert Adamson, manager of his campaign, had a fifteen-minute talk with Mayor Kline in his office in the City Hall to-day.

"I just came down to express to the Mayor my appreciation of the police safeguard he has thrown about the polling places," said Mr. Mitchell. "Did you have occasion to make complaint of election fraud?" the Mayorally candidate was asked.

"No, I had no complaint to make," said Mr. Mitchell. "The Highest Hall Association will take care of frauds."

MITCHELL REQUESTS SHIFT OF CAPTAINS FOR ELECTION DAY.

John Purroy Mitchell said a visit to Mayor Kline this afternoon and requested that the Mayor order a general transfer of all the police captains in the city for the day—that is, for the voting period.

On Election Day it is customary to order a transfer of policemen from one precinct to another, but Mr. Mitchell's request goes far beyond this. He was with Mayor Kline for some time, and therein explained the object of his request, which he said was for the best interests of the city. He made it clear that all he desired was a transfer of the captains for the day, with a return to their regularly appointed precincts on Nov. 6.

Mayor Kline was not prepared to accede to the request just at the moment, and told Mr. Mitchell that he would take the matter under advisement.

WILL PROSECUTE MANY UNDER GAVGAN RULING.

Acting under Justice Gavegan's decision on Saturday that a man's voting residence is his domicile and not the place of his business, Special Assistant District Attorney Arthur Train has secured many warrants for the arrest of men who will be affected by this decision and they have been put in the hands of Chief Inspector Schmittner for distribution among the policemen on guard at the polls to-morrow. It is understood that those warrants were drawn against voters whose names were in the lists furnished to Justice Gavegan by the Honest Ballot Association and the "Vote League."

The prompt action of Mr. Train forebodes many arrests to-morrow and not a little protesting on the part of outraged citizens who for years have been voting at polling places in other districts than those in which they reside.

Besides these warrants under the Gavegan ruling, more than 100 indictments have been found under the Special Assistant District Attorney's investigations, charging illegal registration. Bench warrants upon these indictments have been received from Judge Malone in General Sessions and have been distributed among the police watchers.

JUDGE INSTRUCTS GRAND JURORS ON THE ELECTION LAWS.

Judge Crain in Part I. of General Sessions to-day impounded two Grand Jurors for the month of November. In his charge to the Jurors respecting their duties he dwelt upon the possibilities of their being called upon to consider cases involving alleged violations of the election law.

"You need not be told," he said, "that it is of the utmost importance that the provisions of the election law should be enforced. It is well that those who may seek to exercise the elective franchise should know that attempts if they be made—to violate the law will be followed by indictment and prosecution, and where guilt is established, by punishment. That is equally true of the situation in which any person of legal age is placed when he registers. He will find himself in the electors' list of the establishment of a violation by him of any provision of the election law."

Judge Crain selected Charles T. Pollmer, an umbrella manufacturer, at No. 114 Fifth avenue, and Nelson, Robinson, a banker, at No. 2 Wall street, as foremen of the Grand Jurors.

PIGEON CARRYING ELECTION MESSAGE FALLS TO EARTH.

A large gray homing pigeon this afternoon fell exhausted in Central Park close to the menagerie. It bore from some one to another an election eve message. Donald Burns, who looks after the aviary in Central Park, picked it up.

About the pigeon's neck was a small brass ring to which was attached an aluminum tag bearing the initials "J. M." and below this the letters "L. J. M." Attached to the tag was a small piece of paper on which was written the following message: "The fusion is the only way to save the city. Vote for McCall, Mitchell and Aneny. Go, but the Chief is with us always. How are you going to vote?"

After the homer had rested for about three-quarters of an hour it was liberated. The pigeon rose straight in the air until it reached a high altitude and then headed south.

BILLBOARD WAR BETWEEN FUSION AND TAMMANY MEN.

The battle of the bill boards raged furiously last night between Tammany and Fusion. The slap of the paste brush and the rip of the poster were heard all along Broadway.

Fusion managers by a flank move last Friday night got more than 2,000 large bill boards covered with flaming posters telling the benefits of Mitchell rule and the dangers of McCall rule in the City Hall.

Last night attacks were made on the stands in many parts of the town. In some places Fusion posters were covered with Tammany eight sheets and McCall literature. In other places Mitchell paper was ripped off the boards or mutilated. There were loud cries of rage and defiance from opposing camps.

Fusion Manager Adamson appealed to the police and the other side replied with more slaps covered with flaming posters. There was talk about arrests and counter suits over contracts to put up and tear down posters as fast as they could.

'CHIEF,' CONFIDENT, DECLARES IT WILL BE A LANDSLIDE

For Whom? Why, for Tammany, Says Murphy, Blowing Smoke Rings.

WON'T DISCUSS SULZER.

Relies on Votes for McCall as Result of Many Attacks on Judge.

"It's going to be a landslide," said Ross Murphy at Tammany Hall at noon to-day.

"A landslide for whom?" was asked.

"Why, a landslide for Tammany," was the ready reply.

"Have you a final statement to make?" Murphy was asked.

"No," he replied.

"Then you still adhere to the prediction of 150,000 plurality for Tammany of a few days ago?"

"That's it."

"What is going to cause all this landslide for Tammany?" was asked.

"The filthy campaign that has been waged against the Democratic candidates," Murphy replied.

"Do you think the newspapers have treated the Democratic candidates fairly?" was the next question.

The "Chief" tilted back, pulled away at his cigar and finally replied: "I like the newspaper boys."

"But how about the newspapers themselves?"

The boss thought a moment and then said he didn't think he'd have to reply to that.

"Have you anything to say about the latest utterances of William Sulzer?"

"Nothing to say," replied Murphy. Then: "I won't go into that kind of stuff. Please don't ask me."

Charles Francis Murphy looked positively happy to-day. There was no pose about it either.

CARMODY ORDERS SWEEPING INQUIRY INTO BLACK BOOK

Attorney-General's office into the Sullivan matter and other matters incident thereto for the sole purpose of getting at the proof regardless of political consequences.

"The people are entitled to know whether or not ex-Senator Sullivan has evidence upon which other men in the public service can be convicted or whether or not a fraud was sought to be perpetrated on the people of the State by the skillful use of ex-Senator Sullivan and his so-called confession."

"If the public affairs of the State of New York are so bad that it is necessary to use the detectivephone in public office for the purpose of protecting the honest and detecting the dishonest, then it is the duty of the public to know the facts that were given to the public, stripped of all personal and political significance, and disposed of and passed upon under ordinary rules of evidence by tribunals in which the sane and honest people of this country still have confidence."

Stowell, through his counsel, Senator McClelland, denies the authenticity of the conversation in the "black book." He called the book a "fraud" and the detectivephone a "forgery." Gov. Glynn declined to say whether the proposed investigation was a part of the general inquiry into State matters which he announced some time ago would be conducted.

"The Attorney-General," said the Governor, "will get all the co-operation from this office that he needs in the Sullivan investigation."

WOMAN BADLY BURNED.

Hurries Through Tenement House With Her Clothing Ablaze.

Tenants in the tenement at No. 156 Stanton street were startled this afternoon by the cries of a woman, and many of them rushed into the halls in time to see Mrs. Ada Schuler run out of her flat on the third floor with her clothing ablaze. It had become known as she prepared dinner over the kitchen stove.

Morris Springer, a tailor on the second floor, burned his hands trying to quench the flames, but the woman broke away from him and ran to the ground floor, where Mrs. Zang, a tenant, threw a quilt around her and put out the fire.

Just as the woman was taken to Gouverneur Hospital, where it was said her condition was serious.

Crushed to Death in Excavation.

A gang of laborers excavating a cellar for a new apartment house at 100 Hundred and Seventeenth street and Clay avenue, the Bronx, made a two-room rock fast to the chain tackle of a thirty-foot derrick this morning and gave the word to hoist away. The rock had risen about half way out of the excavation when the derrick's jaws parted and the machinery and rock toppled into the cut. There was a wild dash to get free, under, and all the laborers escaped except Frank Caruso of No. 215 Arthur avenue, the Bronx. An arm of the derrick caught him and crushed him so badly that he died in a few minutes.

STYMIED!

POLICE BULLETS KILL MAN WHEN STEERS STAMPEDE

pile of jackstraws. Before the cattlemen at the yards could head off the brute through the opening, eight of the big brutes had dashed out to freedom and were pounding up Eighth street, below a challenge to all mankind in New York to bring them to halter.

It was Police Captain McDonough, on duty at the intersection of Broadway and West Street, who first started a chase of some of the high-kicking steers as they galloped past him, looming as large as a station house in the half light from the flickering arc lamps at his corner. McDonough commanded a "halt" near a hand and started to turn the fugitives into Eighth street and thence through to Central Park. There they cleared the road into the Park like Halloween goblins and were lost in the shadows of the shrubbery.

WILD STEER CHARGES DOWN FIFTH AVENUE.

From that minute on until the sun was up steers appeared on street corners, in the shadowed angles of the Park walls and on stoops of staid householders all the way from Eighth street down to the Hotel Gotham on Fifth avenue. But the creature that caused the most trouble and was responsible for the death of the watchman first attracted attention just about 5 o'clock.

Police Captain Grace of the East Fifty-first street station was on "peg post" at Fifty-eighth street and Fifth avenue when he saw a long, thick shape, like a freight car, lightly vault the park wall a block north of him and come charging down the deserted avenue. He tried to head the bulk of dumb and white off to a corner, but when the heavy animal—a bull this was—lowered his head and charged at Grace the policeman considered discretion the better part of valor and let him pass.

Then Grace yelled for a taxi which was standing in front of the Hotel Netherlands. The chauffeur raced down to where the policeman, now joined by three others, was frantically waving. Two more taxis were commandeered and the blind, almost motionless, line of steers jumped. From every window a policeman leaned out, his revolver at arm's stretch, and all the bluecoats began popping at the plunging shape of the mad bull ahead.

Policeman Lenahan of the East Fifty-first street station was on "peg post" at Fifty-fourth street and the avenue when he heard the wild hullabaloo and the broad stretch of glistening asphalt and saw the blur of the plunging taxicab, with jets of fire stinging out from their windows. Believing that a gang fight had been transferred from the east side into the exclusive Fifth avenue precinct, he swung his revolver and started up the avenue on foot to meet the cavalcade of artillery.

TAXICABS IN CHASE AS POLICEMEN OPEN FIRE.

Policeman Wilday joined him at Fifty-fifth street just as the charging bull, head lowered and stumpy horns brandishing dangerously, came "rarin'" down on them. They began an enfilading fire from the safety of the sidewalk; more revolver shots from the taxis behind; lights in the windows of the Hotel Gotham and the Hotel St. Regis, across the street, called through the dawn. Excitement at boiling pitch!

The bull, bleeding from a dozen wounds but strong as ever, turned into Fifty-fifth street around the corner, cornered by another containing Policemen Lenahan and Wilday, in close pursuit.

Boatle, the watchman of the building under course of construction at No. 21 Kent fifty-fifth street, had been doing over his little stove in the shack erected on the sidewalk in front of the new building when the sound of the revolver shots aroused him. He looked out the door to see the cluttered shapes of taxicabs and prancing bull.

WATCHMAN DIES TO SAVE RED LANTERNS.

Fearful lest the two cheap red lanterns that burned on the barricade stretched around the sidewalk should be hurt, the old watchman ran out to save the lights. He had already in his hand, and he was reaching for the other when a bullet bored through his right eye. He dropped dead, the burning lantern still in his hand.

Just a minute before the death of Boatle, Wagonheim, the Hotel

Gotham waiter, had received a bullet in his right ankle as he stood in front of the Hotel St. Regis, marvelling at what the dawn had brought forth. He was taken to Flower Hospital by Dr. Quaglia.

Undaunted by the bullets that had perforated his hide, the brute bull plunged down the middle of the street, turned down Broadway, and then turned down to the mansion of the late Whitelaw Reid, between Fifty-first and Fifty-fifth streets.

DIED IN FRONT OF CARDINAL FARLEY'S PALACE.

There the bull tried to charge into the U-shaped courtyard and onto the stoop of the north wing of the house which is occupied by Mr. Fahrenstock. He was headed out of this cul-de-sac by some blundering shots. Then, wobbling on his feet but still game, the animal crossed the street and tried to climb the short flight of steps leading to the lady chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Again lead was pumped into him. He fell over the low retaining wall in front of the chapel, plunged down to the foot of Cardinal Farley's palace on the Fifth street corner and there died after Lenahan had put his revolver to the forehead of the beast and fired three shots.

NEGRO POLICEMAN, UNDAUNTED, THROWS BULL.

This steer had collided with an auto delivery wagon belonging to the Baughman grocery store at No. 32 Columbus avenue as the wagon was crossing through Central Park. The auto delivery vehicle was completely wrecked, but the steer was not.

At Eighty-third street and Central Park West Holmes, who is a giant and proportional to a sandow, walked boldly up to the snorting steer after the beast had knocked down and trampled Policeman Kiernan, threw his right hand over the animal's nostrils to shut off its wind and then, with a sudden twist on a stumpy horn, threw the ponderous Oregon monster over its side and held it there until it could be tied up with ropes.

Police Officer J. J. Vaidin, in the "movies" never did the bull trick better. Policemen McGovern and McKenna roped and threw one of the runaways at Sixty-second street and West End avenue. Policeman McDough shot and killed another at Seventy-sixth street and Broadway. Policeman Kennedy killed a runaway at Eighty-first street and Central Park West.

Policeman Herbert Kennedy and John Kelly killed another at Seventy-seventh street and Central Park West. Another, which broke the front windows of the Sherman Square Hotel ran up Broadway to turn later into Central Park.

Mounted Policeman King of the Central Park Squad accounted for the last of the runaway cattle. He found a steer browsing on the shrubbery near the middle path at Seventy-second street and brought it down with four shots.

MEXICO'S RICHEST MAN A PRISONER OF WAR

Gen. Terrazas Reported Held by Federal Commander at Juarez.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 3.—Gen. Terrazas, reported to be the wealthiest man in Mexico, is reported a prisoner of the Federals at Juarez. Military officials in Juarez deny knowledge of his presence, but the rumor is persistent that Gen. Terrazas and members of his family were to Juarez yesterday on the special train that brought Gen. Francisco Castro, and that Terrazas was detained.

Gen. Castro took command of the Juarez garrison last night. Simultaneously Guillermo Cruz, Mayor, came over to El Paso and to-day Gen. Castro announced "Luzit Comandante" as the new Mayor. Reinforcements were sent from Juarez to Chihuahua to-day. The Federals still hold the city of Chihuahua, according to advices here.

YOUNG M'LAUGHLIN TELLS OF FATHER'S LOAN TO M'CALL

Judge McCall $10,000 "for his nomination." His father had complained many times, the witness said, that he had been unable to get his money from Judge McCall. His father had never told him anything direct, but he had overheard conversations between his father and mother when they were talking the matter over. He couldn't recall anything his mother had said during the course of these conversations.

The witness said that his father employed an attorney named Hyde at No. 10 Wall street to bring a suit against Judge McCall. Mr. Whitman became very much interested.

"What was Hyde's first name?" he asked.

"Charles," answered the witness. "Describe him."

"He was a man about your size and he wore a black mustache."

"There is a James W. Hyde practicing law at No. 10 Wall street," said the witness. "Is that the man?"

As former City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde never wore a mustache and is blond anyhow, Mr. Whitman's interest ceased.

After 1908, young McLaughlin said, when his father forced Judge McCall to pay, the Judge's former attitude of cordiality changed.

"He wouldn't even look at me," said the witness. But Mr. McLaughlin insisted that he was a "confidential attendant" to Judge McCall.

He was with Judge McCall from 1907 to February, 1913, and during five of those six years the Judge ignored him, he said.

PHOTOGRAPHED CHECK AT HEADQUARTERS.

After a long examination young McLaughlin gave testimony that he saw the check which developed something. The witness said he recalled hearing his father say he had deposited the check for $10,000 after photographing it in the Rogers' Gallery at Police Headquarters.

"Where did your father have his bank account then?" asked Mr. Whitman.

In the Lincoln Trust Company, I think at Twenty-sixth street and Fifth avenue," replied the witness.

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY CALLED.

Assistant District Attorney William H. Embree was sworn in. He testified that he went to Albany on Oct. 22 and obtained from the Secretary of State's office the original report of receipts and expenditures of the Democratic State Committee and the Democratic New York County Committee in 1910, 1911 and 1912. These statements were prepared by Arthur McLean, treasurer of the State Committee, and Phil Thompson, treasurer of Tammany Hall and also of the New York County Committee.

Mr. Embree identified the statements which were placed in evidence.

Young McLaughlin was recalled. He had refreshed his memory and volunteered the information that his father and Judge McCall had discussed on other matters besides the repayment of the campaign contribution. The witness said his father accused Judge McCall of failing to make repairs on certain buildings owned by McLaughlin which he had reported as made and that the father had also told him of returns on mortgages. Judge McCall before going on the bench was counsel to McLaughlin in real estate matters.

UNIQUE TRIAL MARRIAGE IS REVEALED BY SUIT

Bride Says First Ceremony Was Merely Intended as a Betrothal.

A new kind of trial marriage was revealed to-day in the Supreme Court when Lillian D. Post, a strikingly beautiful young woman of Jersey City, brought suit to have annulled her marriage to George Lester Lary, a wealthy young man.
